THE DIVERSITY OF IOWA’S COUNTIES

No two counties are exactly the same. Counties are one of America’s oldest forms of government, dating back to 1634 when the first county governments were formed in Virginia. Iowa’s first two counties, Des Moines and Dubuque, were formed in 1834 when Iowa was still part of the Michigan Territory. Following reformations of the territories, Iowa became a state consisting of 46 counties in 1846. The last county, Humboldt, was created and Iowa’s current constitution were adopted in 1857.

Counties across the country are diverse in the way they are structured and how they deliver services to the communities because the states decided the roles and responsibilities of the counties. The citizen’s in Iowa voted by a large majority in 1978 to approve an amendment to the Iowa constitution granting counties home rule authority, which gave counties the power to decide their own structural, functional and fiscal organization. Because of this, Iowa citizens decide the structure and form of county government that best suits their needs.

- Iowa’s counties collect your property taxes but spend only 22% of that check. Schools receive nearly 42%, cities over 29%.
- Iowa’s counties are responsible for nearly 80% of bridges statewide, the highest share among states in the nation.
- Iowa county treasurers issue drivers’ licenses in 81 of Iowa’s 99 counties.
- Of Iowa’s 99 counties, 60% have a population under 20,000 while the five most populous account for 35% of the state’s citizens.

Figures based on 2014 data.
The state’s 99 county governments provide the essential services to create healthy, vibrant, and safe communities. Counties support and maintain public infrastructure, transportation and economic development assets; keep residents healthy; ensure public safety to protect our citizens; maintain public information and coordinate elections; and implement a broad array of federal, state and local programs in a cost-effective and efficient manner.

People depend on counties to provide services that build, maintain, and protect their homes, schools and neighborhoods. Counties are also an instrumental player in America’s intergovernmental system of federal, state, and local governments.

ISAC members support state and federal policies and programs that provide the tools, resources, and solutions needed to spur job growth, improve the quality of life for all Iowans, and increase the economic competitiveness of Iowa’s counties and communities. To accomplish this, ISAC adheres to a set of core principles through its core functions.
